Hello dlcrew,

Jana informed us that you're looking for an apartment from which to shoot a video. We have a spacious 5-bedroom apartment in crown heights, recently renovated, and are definitely interested. Can you tell us a few more details about what your needs are?

Look forward to hearing from you,
Chris

Hi Guys,

We need to do a 2-day shoot in our main characters' apartment. There would be 20 something people in the apartment, and we'd be using a bedroom, the living room, and kitchen. It pays 500/day--so $1000 total.

Can you send us some pictures of the place? We'll give you a call if it works out and fill you in on everything!

Ryan said you guys are on the first floor, yes?

Best,
Jana

Hey all,

We're trying to move forward with picking an apartment, as soon as possible. I'd love to hook you guys up, since you're friends with Ryan, but the faster you can send photos, the better a chance you have.

Let me know if you have any other questions.

Jana

Hi Jana,

Attached are several photos, including the kitchen, living room and two bedrooms. Our apartment is indeed on the ground floor, but we also have space in the basement. I've included a picture of a second living room in our basement that we use as a band practice space. This is larger than our other living room so if you want to use that for your living room shots, we can disassemble our gear and move it out of the way.

Obviously, if you choose our place we will make sure the place is clean and that all of our stuff is out of your way.

Thanks!

Chris

Hi Chris,

Would you guys be open to us painting a wall or two, if we painted them back to their original color?

Hey Chris,

Before we consent Id like to ask the exact hours--do the two days of shooting include the time spent painting walls? Also will all rooms that require access to central space be off limits and for how long?

Worse case scenario: 200 dollars to vacate the apt completely, move all my shit out and back in in the span of 2 days plus a day of painting, blocking access to most of apt--these costs outweigh pay.

May be moot though--I have a suspicion that our outdoor stairs may be prohibitive.

Hey David,

I will send an e-mail asking these questions. I doubt they will be shooting for 48 hours straight, and frankly I don't think they're going to touch your bedroom because the furniture is really specific (piano, no full bed...). I'd say worst case scenario you have to move your shoes and coats into your room and use your personal exit to get in and out of the building for two days. That sounds like a good deal for $100/day on a Monday and Tuesday when you're working.

Why would our outdoor stairs be prohibitive?

Please remain positive about this, dude. While you only stand to make $200, we each have a stake in this.

Painting a couple walls would not be a problem if they are painted back. Will you be able to paint during the 2-day shoot, or will you need extra time?

Of course, we understand that we will need to make ourselves scarce during the shoot, but will we need to vacate the apartment entirely for 48 hours? We're just trying to get an idea of the specifics before we move forward. But we're very excited about this opportunity and want to make it work for your shoot!

Best,
Chris

Sorry if that came off as negative just want to make sure we don't get taken advantage of.

Hi Chris,

I'd like to put you in touch with our producer, Jon, who can debrief you on the shoot--what it would entail, etc.

What number would be the best to reach you?

Jana
